Clear rhyming text, paired with large-scale, beautifully-detailed colored pencil illustrations, describe how 13 North American animal species survive the winter snuggled inside their dens, nests, burrows and lodges. Peek inside each winter home for a close-up view. Then locate all of the homes together on the final panoramic illustration. Perfect for bedtime!

Lynda Graham-Barber captures the wonder of unique animal adaptations in winter in a way that will appeal to young children. The text is melodic and rich with real natural history woven in.

Teresa Mitchell, Education Director, Vermont Institute of Natural Science
